Ira V. Grounds Sr, 59, stood mute in 83rd District Court on Friday, March 22, when charged with 16 counts of enimal abundonment/cruelty and failare to provide care to animals.

Roberta Chrispell of Merritt, was appointed as Grounds attorney. She asked that his $10,000 bond be reduced or waived due to the fact that her client is indigent. She stated that Grounds' only income is Social Security benefits for one of his five children. Chrispell stated that prior to these charges, Grounds had no criminal record in the state of Michigan or any other states.

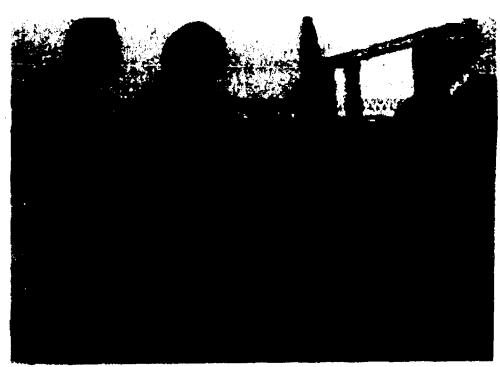

Crawford County Prosecutor John Huss objected to reducing or waiving the $10,000 bond. Huss stated that Grounds does not have substantial ties to the community.

Sheriff deputies had been to the Grounds residence to serve an arrest warrant for Hope Grounds shortly before Ira Grounds' arraignment hearing and found no one at the residence, according to Huss.

The dead animals were found by neighborhood children who were playing in the area. According to neighbors, the Grounds returned twice a day to care for the animals right after

Thank God for police officers

To the editor,

In response to Ms. Sells' previous letter, there are far fewer police officers. and deputies working in Crawford County than you seem to think there are. Officers in northern Michigan handle as many or more complaints as B&Es, fires, ambulance runs, their counterparts downstate, per officer. And as we saw on Sept. 14, 1995, when two officers were shot in the line of duty, just as dangerous.

Officers handle calls from barking dogs to shootings, as well as traffic.

Ron Baker of Grayling, is miffed at recent actions by Lansing officials in the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (MDNR).

For more than a year Baker has been working to cut through beautocratic red-tape that would enable him to purchase a parcel of land at the Four Mile Road intersection with 1-75. He wants to build a tourist information and welcome center on the property.

When he first proposed the project to MDNR officials he was told to submit a site plan and apply for a land exchange. Later, he was told the property could not be released for sale until the county had an official master

Legislation could result in elimination of road commissioners

"The Hoffman bills represent the latest attempt to resolve a financial problem with a political solution."

"In addition to eliminating road commissioners, Senator Hoffman has a bill to repeal the road funding law. Sen. George McManus, R-Traverse City, agreed.

"The road commissions take a lot of burden off the board of commissioners," McManus said. "They are a significant set of people, doing a significant job and not costing us a lot of money."

Hoffman said county boards of commissioners are as qualified to handle county road responsibilities as the road commissions, which he claimed were based on the "old-boy network."

"The county road commissions are, by-and-large, bureaucrats, and bureaucrats don't result in filled potholes," he said.

Scripture records that on the first Good Friday, from the sixth to the ninth hour, there was darkness over the earth. By Hebrew count that would be from Noon until three o'clock. These hours on Good Friday are still widely observed as a time of solemn devotion.

Though no shadow fell on Calvary during those three tragic hours. the shadow of Christ's Cross has ever since fallen hauntingly across the pages of time...the globes of human culture.

Can the shadow of a political execution in a Roman province centuries ago have impact on modern man in the space age?

No! Not the shadow - that is absorbed in the dark of man's suffering and tragedy.

It is the Light that men see and believe in. The Light that penetrates all gloom. The Light that radiates from God and makes the years of His Son's ministry on earth the brightest years of History...gleaming with hope and promise and faith for every generation.

Further cutbacks in wildfire budget could cost lives

'We've reached the lowest level we can go and still function," Duane Brooks, DNR area fire supervisor

By Linda Sherwood Staff Writer

Already stretched to minimum coverage, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Forest Mangement Division could face even further cutbacks as the state slashes funding.

The Department of Natural Resources is responsible for providing wildland fire protection to over 20 million acres of state, federal and private land. Unfortunately, the department's wildland firefighting forces have not kept pace with the increased need for wildland fire protection over the past 20 years.

With the height of fire season approaching, concern about possible fires are growing.

"Our worst season is in the spring when the snow leaves until green up." said Duane Brooks, area fire supervisor from the Department of Natural Resources, Forest Management Divi-

"We've reached the lowest level we can go and sull function," said Brooks Currently there are only 97 fire officers employed by the DNR. In order to meet minimal needs, the department should have 117 fire officers employed. Locally, the Grayling DNR Fire Management Division is at full staffing, according to Brooks.

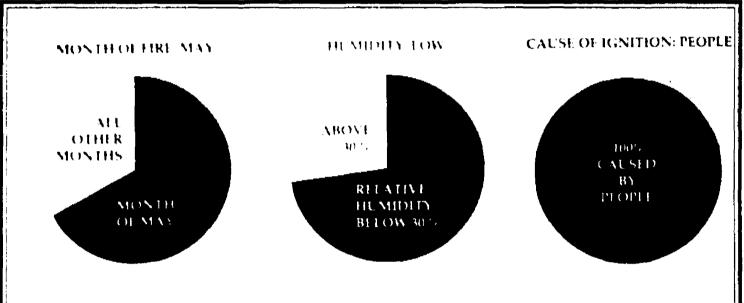

On a day when fire danger is high. (temperatures in the 60's or above. relative humidity of 25-30 percent and 15 mph winds) a jack pine fire can burn 20 acres in 15 minutes. After an hour it will be 300 acres, and after one and a half hours it will have burned more than 700 acres. The Stephan Bridge Road Fire was moving at 277 feet per minute during its most dangerous period. That is nearly one football field every minute or an average of more than 1,000 acres per hour.

The main problem with the department is trouble filling jobs, said Brooks. The governor has issued a cap on the amount the department can hire and that number keeps getting Lower priority offices aren't able to fill vacancies, which will have severe impact on back-up staff for this area.

"We just don't have the people to respond to a multiple fire situation," said Brooks. Thirteen stations have

Sheriff Department to take over animal control

By Linda Sherwood Staff Writer

Animal Control will once again be the responsibility of the Crawford County Sheriff Department in about a week, predicts Sheriff David Lovely. The officer working as animal control officer (ACO) will also be responsible for off-road vehicles (ORV) and snowmobile control as well, with a minimum of 20 hours a week being devoted to animal control issues.

Until recently, Crawford County had a contract with Dixie Lobsinger to perform animal control officer duties. Lobsinger's performance came under criticism by some commissioners as being too concerned with the humane aspects and not tough enough on ani-

County Commissioner Dennis Long applauded Lobsinger and the Animal Shelter of Crawford County's humane efforts, but expressed concern about the large number of animals being held at the shelter.

According to Lobsinger's records, Crawford County handles an average of 66 animal control complaints a month. Since 1991, the number of animals taken in by the Animal Shelter for Crawford County has dropped from 1,600 to 823 in 1995. The number of strays, however, has remained constant at around 500 a year.

The sheriff department's budget for the new ACO/ORV division is $50,670 a year, but possible grant funding could reduce that amount. The budget includes $1,000 for Lovely and $500 for Undersheriff Kirk Wakefield for administrative costs.

PET CARE TIPS

It is a myth that cats become fat and lazy after being spayed or neutered, says the Humane Society of the United States (HSUS). Cats, just like people, become fat because they cat too much and don't get enough exercise. In fact, cats that are spayed or neutered live longer lives and make better companions. By the way, The HSUS says that female cats should be spayed BEFORE their first heat cycle

School openings after Labor Day could increase tourism

By Molly J. Gudritz Capital News Service

Legislation to keep Michigan agrees with Bodem. schools from starting before Labor

Michigan tourism loses money every. Department," Bodem-said. year, when schools start before Labor. Day, for several reasons

"I have had many people complain increase going to education, about the loss in workforce and revenue. that they have when schools start tourists dollars over the Labor Day early," Bodem said.

Bodem expects Michigan tourism because of the sales tax increase. to make an additional $35 million intourist dollars should this bill become.

Chamber of Commerce director, said.

"When schools start before Labor Day, has some people wondering. Day, the season is killed for a number money we could where the sales tax is whether education or tourism is more of reasons," Meyer said. "Not only dopeople stop traveling, but many

Bodem claims a number of benefits

"Not only would tourism benefit, but so would the Treasury

After the passage of Proposal A in March 1994, Michigan's sales tax was increased from 4 to 6 cents, with the Both Bodem and Meyer believe that weekend can directly affect education.

"That extra 2 cents doesn't look like a lot, but with the number of people who travel over Labor Day, education

Jerry Meyer, the Grayling Regional will be greatly benefitted," Bodem

Meyer agrees: "I would think that we would want to bring in all the concerned,"

Some administrators and lawmakers see many problems with the bill.

Gov. John Engler, along with Rep. R. Alpena, sponsored a hill that would from a statewide starting date to the Allen Lowe, R-Grayling, and Kent Reynolds, superintendent for Crawford-AuSable Community Schools, disagree with Bodem and Meyer.

"We oppose this bill," said Pat Masserant, deputy press secretary for Engler, "This is a decision that should be left up to each individual school

Reynolds said, "I find it curious that the Legislature wants more decisions to be made at the local level and to tell us when we have to start the school year doesn't leave us with a lot of

Lowe agrees that telling districts when to start will take away much of their individual decision making.

If the bill passes, a serious reevaluation of the current school year will have to be made, Reynolds said.

"We would have to take away vacation days and run the school year into the end of June," he said. "If this happens, attendance will be impacted and will put a crimp in the plans of families who vacation in the middle of the year and in June.

Bodem does not see that as a problem: "This won't affect the school year that drastically. This will just take a day here and there off vacations, and most people don't vacation until after July 4th anyway."

Lowe is concerned with the amount of learning students actually do when summer arrives: "We would have to extend the school year farther into June, and most kids shut their brains off come June.

Reynolds also sees a problem with scheduling the five professional days that teachers attend each school year. The professional days are workshops and classes for educators designed to help them learn new teaching styles, among other things.

"We set aside five full days for professional development for teachers," Reynolds said. "These are best when they're in the middle of the year, so teachers can go right back into the classroom and implement what they learned."

Reynolds said that, under the bill, professional days would have to be lumped into a period before the beginning of the school year and would be less effective.

Leaving the school year as it is now has some people wondering how effective the time before Labor Day is for students.

"Why would the state want to start school just ahead of a major holiday?" Meyer said. "This seems extremely disruptive,"

Bodem agrees: "Most schools only start two or three days before Labor Day. What kind of a benefit is it to go for two or three days then have a break? I find it hard to believe that those two or three days are that important."

The proposal is pending in the House Education Committee.
